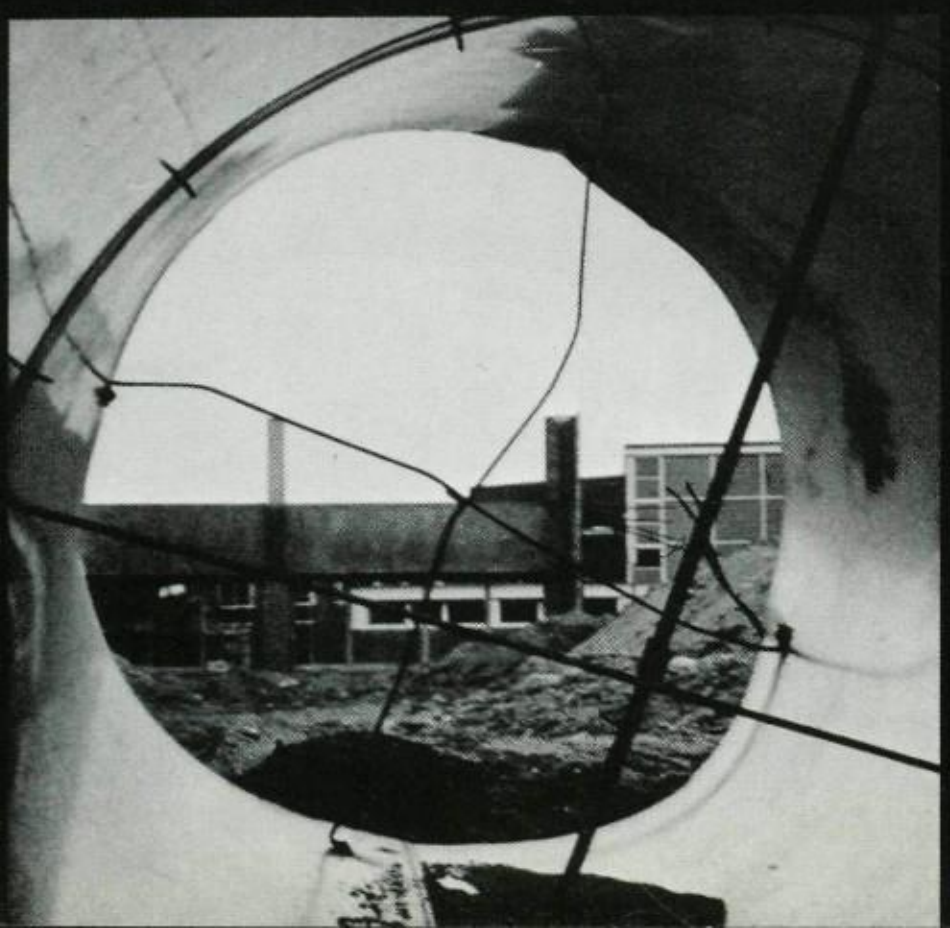
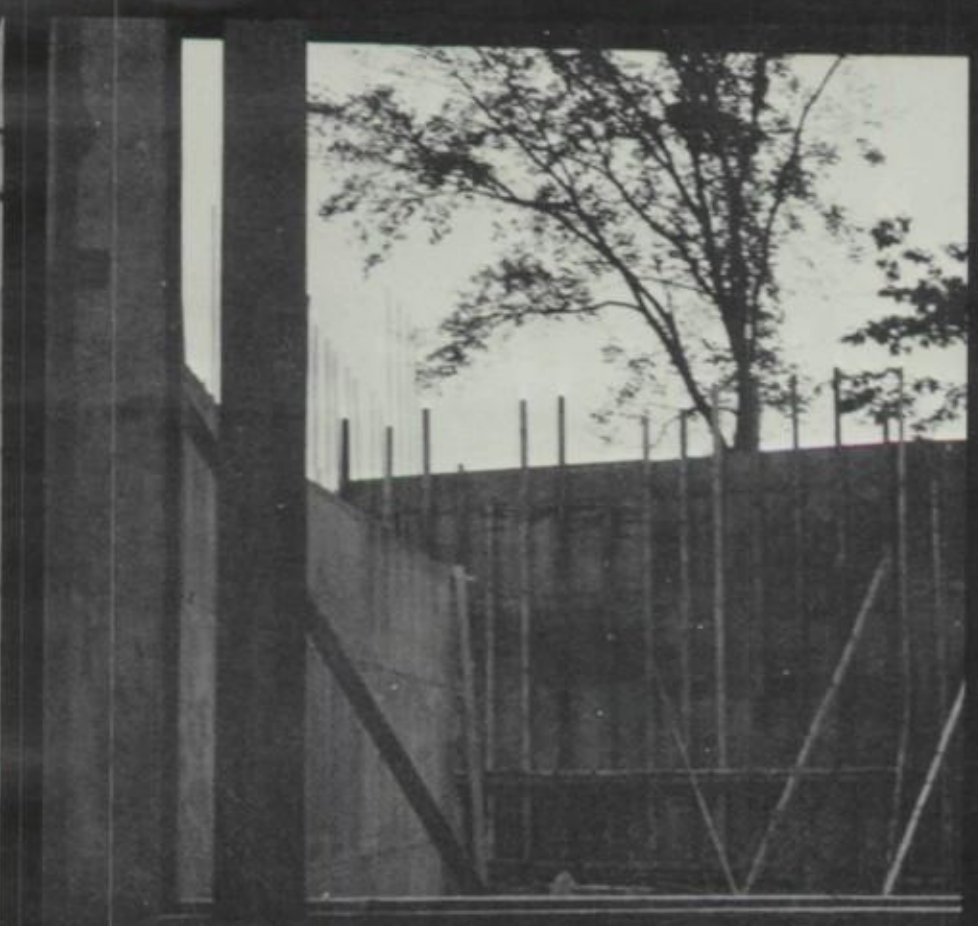
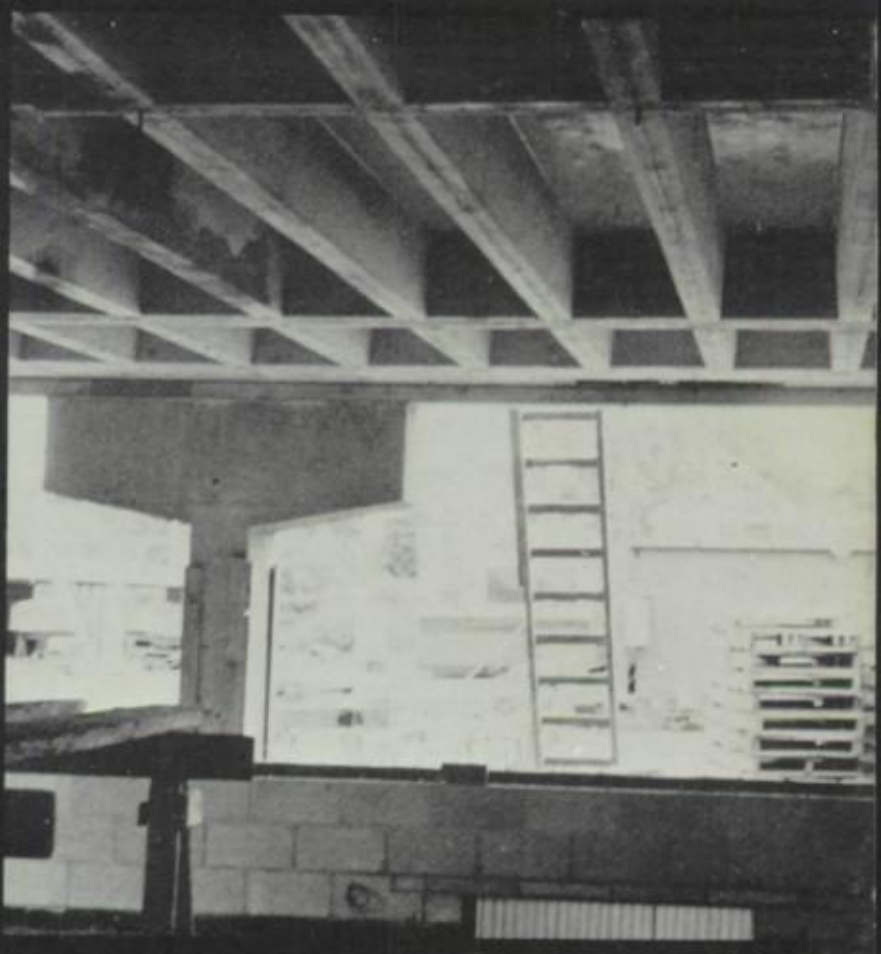
LEXINGTON, MASSACHUSETTS



Lexington is a sprawling ever-growing town of 30,000 people, who have in common only their high economic standing. Lexington is a town of contrasts: a town where poets live next to scientists and professors to plumbers; a town where people's philosophies and ideas are as different as their occupations. Out of this heterogeneous situation spring the schools and the young people who go to them. The schools because of this become more than institutions for the pursuit of book learning; they become places where all the sharp edges of different backgrounds and antithetical personalities clash together, places of conflict and subsequent growth.





The construction of new buildings this year has especially emphasized the freedom the school gives its students to grow, a freedom which allows each person to develop as he chooses. Here in the high school extremes meet: the experienced, the inexperienced; the serious, the lighthearted; the concerned, the unconcerned; the dreamer, the doer. Here the raw materials are presented; here ideas and values are erected; here the student may find what he wants and use it to build on.

Sometimes this construction is slow, imperceptible, difficult. But the freedom to develop is always present. And if the exact goal of development is not always clear, its direction is: the direction toward learning what is important and pursuing it; the direction toward continued growth throughout life.

ACADEMICS

Sidewalk superintendents, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Thurlow, and Mr. Harris survey the construction which will come under their authority in the fall of 1964.
Our principal and his right-hand men have enabled us to adjust to this year's crowded conditions while planning the administration of an expanded high school.

steering the students

Mr. Coffin, a new addition to our guidance staff, chats with Mrs. Blythe. Our guidance staff grows with each year in order to provide individual assistance to any student.
Mr. Cuzner and Mr. Krichman, who have their offices in room 23, assist juniors in their search for proper colleges that will fulfill their personal needs.

Mrs. Craig is always eager to assist any senior girl in search of her help concerning any phase of her college preparation whether it be college boards, applications, or interviews.

The English Department must work untiringly with every student from sophomore to senior and at every level. It is remarkably well-staffed for the task, being a functional mixture of experienced and knowledgeable, youthful and inventive. The best example of versatility is set by the department head, Mr. Cheever, who is equally at home with Homer (in the original Greek) or William Faulkner. Mr. Rutherford, also an accomplished teacher, works ceaselessly with the student who is slow but willing to learn.

Considered a "slave driver" by her sophomores, Miss Smith has burst into Lexington from a background of junior high teaching in Brookline and a city high school in Cleveland, Ohio. Her immediate adjustment to Lexington life has surprised even the most active teachers, and one wonders, after her assuming the yearbook advisorship in her first year, what activities she will be heading up in the years to come.

A quiet, precise man by nature, Mr. Bagley is anything but timid when he wields his heavy red pencil. Many sophomores and juniors are well aware that poor diction and awkward construction cannot escape Mr. Bagley's appraising eye. Dr. Satz, the only Ph.D. on the staff, comes from Revere where he was formerly a vice-principal. His backlog of teaching experience gives the impression that he could and would teach English under any imaginable condition—and teach it well.

Mr. Cobb, a confirmed linguist, teaches both advanced program and basic studies eleventh graders. Here he chats with Mr. Nichols, whose personable charm makes him a great favorite with the students. "Mr. Nick" did an especially fine job on this year's senior play. Miss Paradise is new to Lexington, but her sharp wit and effective threats have kept her students present, hard-working, and on their toes. Mrs. Page, a newcomer from Denver, believes in developing a student's character as well as teaching him English. Miss Bujnievicz, of course, is a familiar member of the department who has rendered valuable assistance in matters of department organization, such as the monthly curriculum planning meetings pictured here.

Miss Weinstein, as yet unfatigued by her first year of teaching here (including one A.P. class), is the guardian and inspirational force of (respectively) the Bridge Club and Overview ("The Thinking Man's Magazine"). Her dynamic classroom approach teeters on the fine line between catastrophe and catharsis, from analyzing the Bible to probing Blackboard Jungle.

Miss Hayward's youthful appearance masks a cool-headed and sober talent for organization that every High Spot editor knows well. Mrs. Chapman formerly taught English composition on the college level at the University of Maine and stresses mastery of the language in her courses here. Mr. Kirk, a champion of intellectual freedom, has greatly enriched the tenth grade curriculum with stimulating emphasis on painting, music and drama, as well as many pupil planned programs. Miss Chamberlain's familiar warm smile cheers the "late shift" of p.m. sophomores. Miss Bilezekian's soft-spoken manner belies a firm command of both her subject and her student's attention.

Best wishes
next year, Lee!
Chamberlain

The staff member who has done more than anyone else to "spread the gospel" of the revolutionary linguistic approach in English teaching throughout the Lexington schools is Mrs. Bonney. Here she confers with Mr. Leach, the Reading Consultant, about a reading improvement program for her classes. Mr. Leach, in addition to helping countless students to improve their study techniques by improving their reading skills, is an accomplished world traveler and, fittingly, advisor to the American Field Service Organization.

advancing the arts

Absolute quiet is required in the library at all times, and our librarians, Mrs. Gavin, and Miss Richmond, threaten horrid punishment to those who don't keep it. But, if anyone needs help, then they forget their threats and agree to do almost anything to find information, no matter what type of assignment we bring in.

Our music staff includes Mr. White who conducts our band and also makes rounds to the elementary schools to give lessons in various instruments. Mr. Vasil, who has replaced Mrs. Sandberger this year, has by sheer physical labor inspired the chorus to great heights. Mr. Gillespie has brought out our musical best. Mr. Eleftherakis has pulled our orchestra up by its violin strings, straining every gut.

Mr. Mann and Miss Sielian, through their work with Art Club and their art classes, have brought many new talents to light and polished up some older ones. Their young prodigies have brightened up the school under their direction and aided with school productions as well.

"No, don't say 'ah,' say 'u.' Purse the lips—keep your tongue down. Now try it again." We lack a language lab, but Miss Brega, the new head of the Language Department, and her staff, try hard to teach us the fundamental phonetics of French, Spanish, Latin, and German, and give us a touch of European literature as well.

Miss Adams and Mr. Hennessey have threatened us with dire warnings and flattered us with honeyed language to make us learn. Miss Allen proves daily that Latin is not a dead language, and although her students do not unanimously share her firm belief that a good working knowledge of Latin is a necessity for college and life, they devotedly continue to translate the classics.

In exchange for a lot of hard work drilling on the fundamentals of phonetics and grammar, our dedicated French teachers Miss Piermarini and Mrs. Orenstein share with us the delights of French culture: its literature and arts.

Lee, Bonne Chance, Mrs. Orenstein

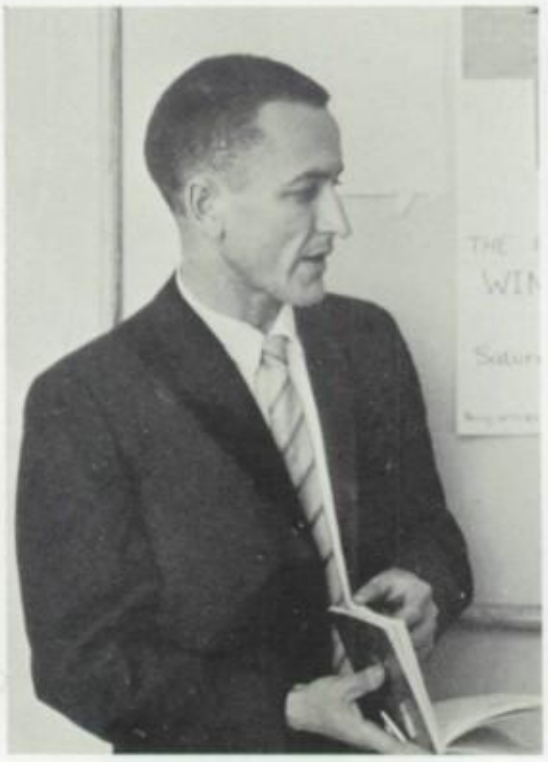
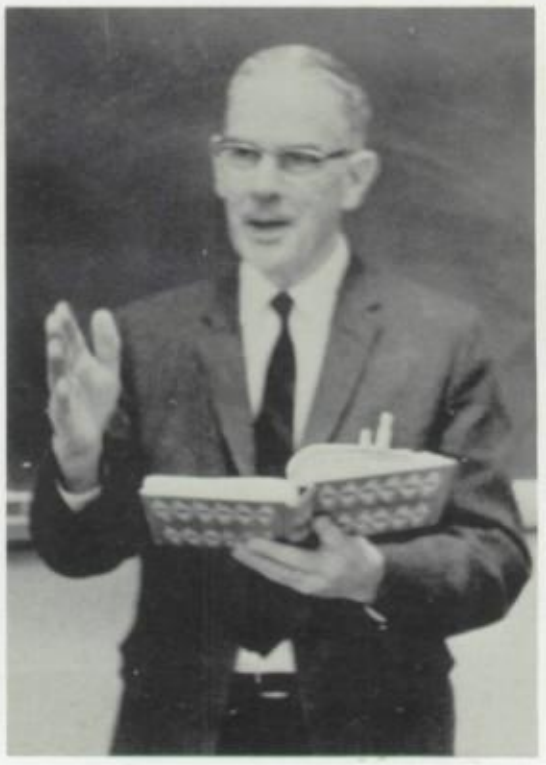
Sr. Barrera, recently arrived from Madrid and Venezuela, has been a great addition to the Spanish department. Striving to prove that, contrary to student opinion, Spanish is not a snap course, he has also proven it to be worth the effort. Mr. Noyes has been patiently listening to our fractured French for two years and continues to try to help in any way he can, even when there is no hope for us or the tongue we "speak."





Miss Silverman and Mr. Denanyan came to us this year as well-qualified additions to the French teaching staff. Mr. Denanyan has stepped into Mrs. Leake's place and filled it as well as anyone could.

Two fine teachers were lost to the Language Department during this year: Miss Leppanen temporarily, due to an arm fracture, and Mrs. Leake, who retired early this winter after three decades of service to Lexington. The learning process will go on, of course, but we will miss her.

This year the Math Department has continued its policy of giving over a group of classes to two Harvard interns. The first semester is taken by Miss Leavell who will be replaced by Mr. Usiskin for the second semester.

Mr. Moyle, as head of the Math Department, takes pride in the wide range of math courses being offered this year, which include a computer course and many fields of advanced math.

Here Mr. Adzigian is seen with his student teacher. These student teachers stay for approximately three weeks. During their stay they observe classes led by the teacher they have been assigned to and later instruct their own classes. Mr. Adzigian ended his math teaching this February to become an Assistant Principal.

plotting

Best wishes for an enjoyable high school career.
W. Ronald Koetke

Mr. Kesinger and Mr. LeBlanc are enjoying a chat over their lunch. Sometime between the hours of 11:00 and 12:31 most teachers can be seen dashing in and out of this room for a rushed lunch and then back to their classes.

Mr. Schutt asks Mr. Koetke to explain some of the facts concerning his new computer course which has been added this year to the math curriculum.

Time out between classes for a quick chat. Mr. Baker and Mr. Rourke chuckle, perhaps at the antics of some student below in the quadrangle.

Mr. Buck and Colonel Head are caught sharing a light moment with the class. Mr. Buck is teaching an H-level senior course in calculus leading to advanced placement in college.

The Science Department has accomplished much in the past few years. Its aims are to instill in its pupils a strong desire to learn the reasons behind both living and mechanical processes; and to satisfy this desire by capable instruction and personal aid. Mr. Choate, seated, known to all as the head of the science department and to many as an interesting and enjoyable instructor, plans new material with Mr. Richards, famous for his elaborate physics experiments, and Mr. Ames, a transfer from the math department last year.

Here seen standing in front of the library, Mr. Muller, new this year, takes time off from his teaching to laugh over the latest story with Mr. Wilson, well-known for his sense of humor. Mr. Rocci, Miss Stetson and Mr. Batalis puzzle over bacteria specimens.

Best Wishes

Mr. Soule greets us in the office with his familiar smile. As are all of the teachers, he is always ready to give extra help (a strong point of the science department) to his pupils. Another distinction is the wide variety of courses and the many courses available.

managing the molecules

Miss Wheeler and Miss Chaffee, another new teacher, joke privately while relaxing in the teachers' lounge.

Mr. Rennie and Miss Moore find biology very amusing at times.

Dr. Murray here discusses departmental policy with Miss McIntyre, a personage for whom both her students and colleagues feel a certain awe. As head of the department, Miss McIntyre is responsible for the correlation of the variety of courses offered in the social studies curriculum. Dr. Murray is the co-ordinator of our well-known Advanced Program which provides exceptional students with progressive and rapidly advancing study.

Mrs. MacArthur, like many other conscientious members of the Lexington faculty, spends much time preparing her classes so that each one will be as informative and interesting as possible. With Mr. Gibson, she sponsored a trip to the United Nations with members of her history classes this year. Seen enjoying a coffee break, Mr. Davenport, in addition to stimulating his students to analyses of adolescents and the nuclear threat, has assumed the leadership of Lexington's Basic Studies program.

knowing the nations

Mr. Wilgoren and Mr. Tapply are seen deeply engrossed in a discussion of some topic with great "vigah." These two young teachers are in part responsible for generating an excitement about history notable at Lexington. This has been encouraged through panels and round tables with the emphasis on the expression of personal ideas on all topics relating to the political and social sphere.

Enjoying a hasty lunch are Miss Kornblith, Miss Lav, and Mr. DiGiammarino. Miss Kornblith is a Harvard Intern who graced the social studies scene for the first half of the year, to be replaced by her partner, Mr. Fletcher. Miss Lav was an intern last year and joined the staff full time this year. Mr. DiGiammarino, who has in addition to his teaching duties the back-breaking task of supplying all departments with audio-visual aids, finds time to run the student government day annually and to advise the senior class.

Ever wonder what goes on between two teachers in the corridors? Here are Mr. Gibson and Mr. Zucco, caught at such a moment, discussing an unknown topic which could be anything from political philosophy to governmental gossip to student shenanigans.

Miss Lewis and Mrs. Calvert are relaxing in the Teachers' room away from the hustle and bustle of their classes. The teachers' room is one of the few retreats left in the school for our tired teachers.

Good luck always,
Olivie Calvert

Students aren't the only ones who must keep up their studies, teachers also must do their share. Here is seen Mr. Moores keeping up with his studies lest he be overrun by the verbose opinions of his students.

Mr. Southwick teaches both United States History and American Problems. These courses provide his students with a better understanding of the country they live in.

Mr. Flynn demonstrates the typewriter to Mrs. Cadran. The typing course trains students for secretarial work and provides them with a skill for personal use. With the aid of the controlled reader and marching-song records, typists build speed and develop rhythm. Miss Spidle, Miss Campbell, and Mr. Llewellyn of the Business Education Department operate the duplicating machine. Such courses as Business Machines or Accounting prepare students for both the business world and business school.

Miss Clark and Mrs. Lutrzykowski are the directors of the Home Economics center. They have provided cooking classes for both girls and boys and sewing classes for all interested girls. There is a psychology course which includes a type of self analysis, allowing one to understand himself that he might better understand others.

Through the porthole Mr. Collard surveys the progress of the new building. As coordinator of the new Work Experience Program, he also surveys the progress of students in their school placement jobs. The Work Experience Program, which is the offspring of the Basic Studies Program, provides students with job training in conjunction with classroom studies.

working the wheels

Mr. MacInnes and Mr. Proctor talk over discipline problems at L.H.S. or are they discussing outstanding achievements in wood shop and mechanical drawing?

Mr. Messina and Mr. DuFour revise next year's pre-engineering course. Power mechanics and electronics along with wood and metal are the four topics covered by this one year course.

Mr. Burnell escapes for an hour of lunch. He seems to have figured a new angle on getting more equipment for the metal shop.

Lexington's own hot rodders, Mr. Malcolm and Mr. Gumb, relay their skills in a half year of class-room and six hours on the road.

Mr. Todaro adjusts the parallel bars for those hardy souls who participate in the recently stepped-up gymnastics program.

Always watching out for the boys, Mr. Janusas and Mr. Lord eagerly watch as students agilely climb the ropes. Mr. Messina and Doc Abell inspire the boys to keep up those difficult exercises. Mr. Massimino is directing his class in rigorous calisthenics which are a part of every gym period. Mr. Keith and these boys show us that gym does not have to be all work, but it can also produce a lot of laughs, as well.

Girls, too, have reached new heights in physical education. Miss Lawson shows how easy the uneven parallel bars can be. Miss Leavitt and Mrs. Russian carefully spot her. Mrs. Mogan and Mrs. Burrows, the school nurses, continue their program to help point out health dangers to students to help them maintain the heights they have attained.

building the body

George Doughty, chief custodian, Fred Ennis, Tom Bentley, Joe Swan, Harold Petty, Herman Mahon, and Archie McLellan are the custodians of our large school and to whom we are grateful for keeping the school free from cobwebs.

maintaining the multitudes

The lunchroom staff, who prepares our lunches each day, are Mrs. Ferreira, Mrs. Varano, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Setterlund, Mrs. Clyde, Mrs. Dominie, Mrs. McSweeney, Mrs. DFelice, Mrs.Marcussen, and Mrs. Haynes (absent).

Louise Hatfield and Hazel Wilson are the part-time secretaries in the library.

Julie Nelsen, Dale Maitland, and Martha Seaberg are three of the secretaries who make our school run efficiently by taking care of the paper work and the switchboard.

Hazel Haugh, Vera Lovering, Esther Samson, and Gertrude Nelsen are the fine secretaries who are responsible for all the correspondence of our busy school.

STUDENT COUNCIL—The only organization that comes into direct contact with all three classes in the high school is the Student Council. The Student Council is the legislative organ of the student body and serves as the liaison between the students and the faculty. The council also coordinates class and club activities, organizes a traffic squad, conducts all school elections, and provides sophomore orientation. Such projects as the sale of football programs, the Winter Sports Bazaar, in conjunction with the Ski Club, and the Student Exchange program with Newton and Ashland, were a few of the council's numerous activities.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY—The goals of the National Honor Society are expressed in its criteria for membership: scholarship, leadership, service, character. Leadership and service are duties performed for the school, and they are the keynotes of the activities of the Society. The two annual bookfairs and the Society's organization of the student-faculty basketball game provide funds for the three scholarships awarded to non-members. The Society surveys the graduates of L.H.S. during their first two years out of high school to assess the teaching methods used in the school. This year the members have increased their responsibilities by participating in the "Pledge of Allegiance" over the P.A.

GUEST GREETERS—The task of offering directions and information to the school's numerous visitors, is successfully carried out by the Guest Greeters. The Guest Greeter's courtesy and friendliness present an image of what Lexington High School students are really like. Presenting favorable impressions of the student body, is truly a role of major importance.

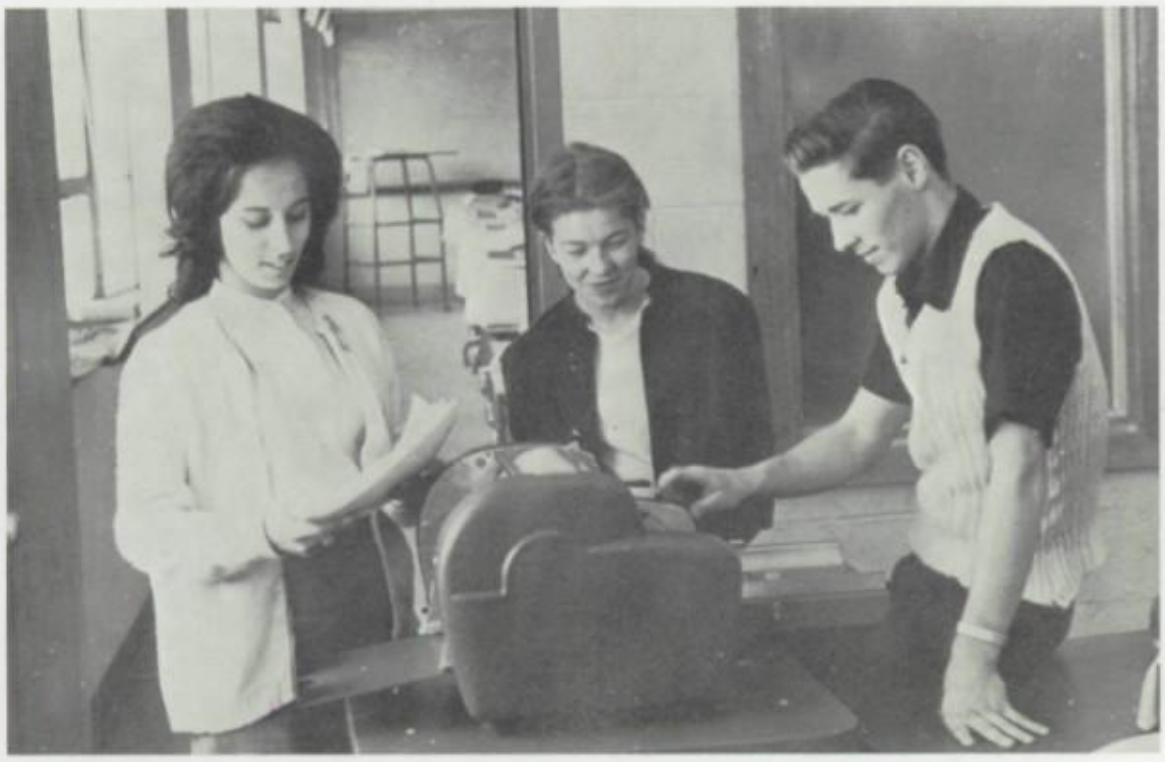
OFFICE HELP—While the Office Helpers assist the staff in filing, running papers off, going through cards, and helping teachers on duty, they also lend a hand in demonstrating to the adults of L.H.S. that the students can do efficient work. By providing the assistance needed in the office they have made a more coordinated management possible.



BUSINESS SERVICE CLUB —The work of the Business Service Club, led by Miss Spidle, can be seen in most of the classes attended by the students of Lexington High School. All teachers finding the need for typed copies of tests, work sheets, schedules and other papers necessary to teaching, are able to make out request forms and submit them to the Business Service Club. Members of the club, who are receiving valuable practice in business which will benefit them in later years, fulfill these requests by returning neat, clear dittos to the office and to the teachers.

LIBRARY STAFF—Maintaining the efficiency of the library and servicing faculty and students are the main functions of the Library Club. During the year, field trips to the libraries of neighboring colleges such as Simmons and Brandeis are taken. They hold a Christmas party each year for the A.F.S. students and a tea for the faculty to introduce new teachers and refresh the old about the services of the library that are available to them. The club, along with the whole school, is enthusiastically awaiting the new library to be completed next fall.

LUNCHROOM COMMITTEE—Probably one of the busiest clubs at L.H.S. is the Lunchroom Committee. Members of the staff, limited to juniors and seniors, volunteer to work in the lunchroom during their study periods. Their duties include selling milk and bag lunches and picking up trash left by careless eaters. Few students appreciate the contributions this club has made to life at L.H.S. The lunchroom committee is devoted to making the most important part of a student's day—lunchtime—more enjoyable.

AUDIO-VISUAL CLUB—Classes would be unable to use the opaque projector, film projector, or recording equipment, without the aid of the Audio-Visual squad. Members are trained in the proper care and maintenance of the equipment and then they are qualified to run them during classes. The complete upkeep of the equipment, including buying parts, is the squad responsibility. Besides delivering equipment, they have a group who makes overhead projector slides for the teachers.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE—The Assembly Committee's main function is to establish an annual calendar of assemblies to present to the student body. An assorted variety of programs such as folk music, choral groups, U.N. essay contest, and the National Honor Society induction highlighted the year. Members are responsible for planning the assemblies, acting as a master or mistress of ceremonies, and seating the students in the auditorium. Approximately twenty-five members are chosen from the junior and senior classes by the advisors and committee officers of the previous year.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA—One of the most needy fields today is that of education. The main purpose of the Future Teachers of America is to inform the students of L.H.S. about teaching as a profession. The members want to know what teaching consists of, and what qualifications are needed to enter this field. The club hoped to accomplish their goal through guest speakers and trips to various universities, such as the University of Massachusetts. Among their activities was an Annual Teachers Tea. Money earned from these activities and fund raising projects was put into a scholarship program for students wishing to go into teaching.

our retrospection will be all to the future

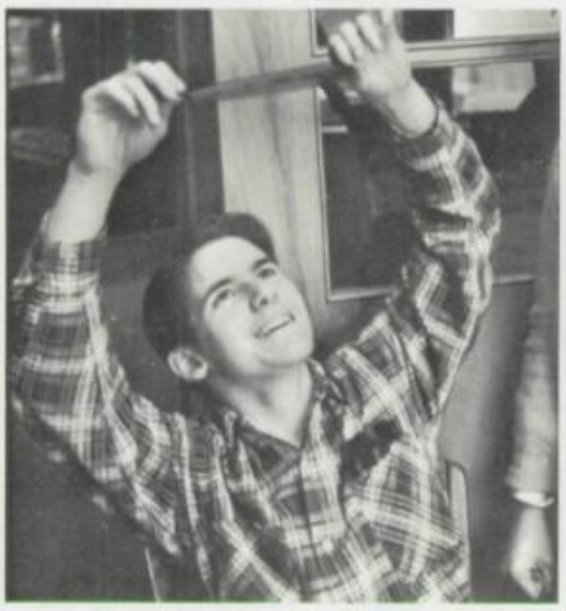
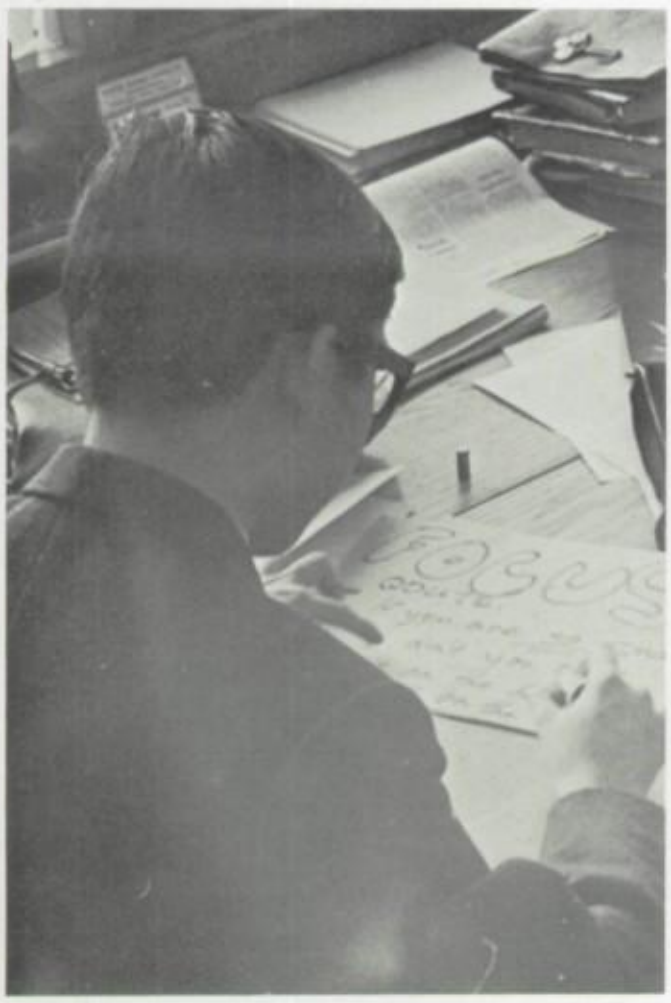
FUTURE NURSES OF AMERICA—Lexington High School girls planning medical careers have the opportunity to prepare through the Future Nurses of America. In open meetings the girls planned the various activities of the year. The program included a lecture by past Lexington students on Mt. Auburn Hospital and professional nursing, films on Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center and Heart Surgery, as well as the annual maple sugar candy sale and food sale. The highlight of the year was the annual Silver Tea, a program to supply scholarship assistance to future nurses.

YOUNG MODERNS—Young Moderns Club is devoted to teaching girls the essentials of good grooming and etiquette, as well as preparing them for a future at home, work, or college. As club activities, speakers were invited to talk on such subjects as hairdressing and diamonds. In conjunction with Student Council, the club also drew up a dress code which listed the most and least desirable school clothes. Thus, the club extended its code of good grooming throughout the school.

YEARBOOK—Under the advisorship of Miss Smith, the staff of Yearbook 1964 assumed a new goal for its production: to make the yearbook the individual record of a unique year. Some of the innovations introduced to achieve this goal were the substitution of action shots for posed group pictures, the use of writers from each class, and the greater use of student photography—both in taking pictures and in processing films and prints in the school darkroom. An increased emphasis on the academic aspects of this year; activity, faculty, and students indexes; and artistic tip-ins or dividers were the chief format changes. Students on the staff received a working knowledge of the rudiments of layout, reporting, and journalistic photography. Several editors had the opportunity to attend conferences on scholastic publishing, held at Boston University and Columbia University, in New York City. Editors learned the hazards of falling behind the production schedule as each deadline was met at the eleventh hour—literally in the evenings and weekends.





Now in its sixth year of publication, under the new advisorship of Miss Hayward, High Spot has undergone several changes and improved its overall quality. Complications arising from sophomore double sessions have somewhat limited the amount of experimentation possible this year. However, two important innovations have been the sale of High Spot at newsstands throughout Lexington to increase its reading audience, and the publication of the literary supplement, Focus, four times this year. There was some apprehension that a clash might arise between Focus and the new magazine, Overview, but since the former is primarily literary and artistic and the latter for political and social commentary, rivalry was avoided (except for some good-natured competition in advertising posters).

OVERVIEW—A new addition (edition) joined L.H.S.'s extra-curricular literary clubs this year. It was Overview, a magazine of the humanities and social sciences. Working with the English and Social Studies Departments, the staff published the first issue in January—fifty pages for twenty-five cents. Who can forget the magazine's humorous posters, such as "Where have all the flowers gone?—Overview," and "Mr. Cheever says there are grammatical errors in Overview." Both student and teacher acclamation of Overview has been gratifying, and it's hoped that the magazine will be a credit to the school's academic image.

'tis pleasure, sure, to see one's name in print

HIGH SPOT—L.H.S. students are always kept informed of the latest school activities by the monthly newspaper, High Spot. Encouraging students to show their creativity and to express their opinion in "Letters to the Editor," High Spot gives interested pupils a chance to participate in literary and artistic production.

I do but sing

GIRLS' AND BOYS' CHORUS—Male Chorus and Girls' Glee Club, both led by Mr. Vasil, had a very prosperous year. The climax of the season was the Winter Choral Concert. This concert, first of its kind at Lexington High School, featured the Male Chorus, the Girls' Glee Club, and the Concert Choir. The boys did selections from almost every musical era, from Palestrina's "Adoramus Te" to a selection from Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady." The Girls' Glee Club sang music chiefly by contemporary artists, including Bartok and Thompson. The students of both groups were also members of the General Chorus.

CONCERT CHOIR—The Concert Choir, a group of fifty juniors and seniors, was the outstanding choral organization at Lexington High this year. The quality of the group may be easily compared with college choirs and small professional organizations. Besides singing at the Winter Choral Concert, they performed for a number of local associations. The group, directed by Mr. Vasil, sang mostly contemporary works, including selections from Irving Fine's "Alice in Wonderland," Randoll Thomson's "Alleluia," and "How Lovely is they Dwelling Place" from Brahm's "Requiem." the choir met after school two days a week. And, although a great deal of time was required from the members, the results were well worth the effort.

BRIGADOON—This year, under the direction of Mr. Vasil, the musical was not the traditional Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, but rather a Lerner and Loewe production, "Brigadoon." "Brigadoon" is the story of two Americans, Tommy Albright and Jeff Douglas, who stumble across a mystical town in the Scottish Highland. Tommy falls in love with Fiona, a Scottish maid. However, he learns that every night the town literally sleeps for a hundred years. Returning to his home in New York, Tommy finds himself haunted by Fiona's memory. He finally returns to Scotland and to find her and Brigadoon. This production was presented in April after two months of rehearsal. The principal leads of the musical were Luellen Lannom, Rowena Done, Ronnie Kunz, Phil Goldthwait, Vivian Nash, and Vicky Gates.

BAND—The students in blue and gold, marching down the field playing "Fighting for Lexington" under the direction of Mr. George White, are a familiar sight to all Lexington's supporters, throughout the football season. When winter slides in and snow prohibits outside activity, the band retreats to the auditorium to practice musical arrangements for future concerts. Then back to marching for the April Nineteenth Parade and Memorial Day Parade to complete the year's obligations.

ORCHESTRA—If by chance one is walking down by the cafeteria of Lexington High School during F Block on Mondays or Wednesdays he might detect unique sounds escaping from the walls of the auditorium. One can recognize the euphonius harmony coming from strings, woodwinds, brass, and percussion playing Handel's Overture of Sampson. The orchestra, consisting of talented members of the student body, is practicing for one of its concerts under the direction of Mr. Eleftherios Eleftherakis' lively viola bow.

MAJORETTES—Working with the cheerleaders and the band, the majorettes performed many varied routines at the football games this fall. At the annual Thanksgiving Pep Rally, dressed in Indian costumes, they did "A Tribute to Mother Goose." After the year's sports were over, the majorettes took part in the April Nineteenth and Memorial Day parades and the May Band Festival.

FRETTED STRING INSTRUMENTAL CLUB—The Fretted String Instrumental Club got off to a slow start this year due to several unavoidable circumstances. However, early in January the Club resumed its active program, holding meetings nearly every Thursday. Members were given a weekly opportunity to exchange ideas on instrumental style and technique, while vocal groups had a chance to practice and learn new songs. A general "song fest" ended each meeting. The climax of the Club's activities centered around the annual Vaudeville Show, which raised over one thousand dollars for the American Field Service and several hundred dollars for various other worthwhile school functions.

DANCE CLUB—When music is heard resounding from the girls' corrective room after school, it usually means a group of leotard-clad girls are inside working out dance routines and practicing. They are members of the Dance Club which provides the opportunity for any sophomore, junior, or senior girl to learn the fundamentals of dance. 1963-64 was a busy year. With Mrs. Russian as advisor, the girls had fun working hard at rehearsals two afternoons a week and were able to provide entertainment for the A.F.S. dance with a number done to "Japanese Sandman." They also performed in the vaudeville show.

ART CLUB—Although the size of this year's Art Club necessitated four separate groups, the members maintained their unity in an effort to provide scholarship aid for future artists. To earn the money, the Art Club sold candy bars and made and sold ceramics and reproductions. The year ended with a traditional trip to Rockport.

CREATIVE WRITING SEMINAR—At the start of the third term, a new course, Creative Writing, was offered to L.H.S. students. To qualify, each student had to submit a sample of his creative work. Besides being taught the techniques of writing good short stories, plays, and poems, members had their weekly assignments critically analyzed and had the opportunity of publishing their works. The course, taught by Mrs. David Humez, a professional editor, is hoped to be continued next year.

BOWLING CLUB—Each Wednesday afternoon interested students rush out to catch the buses to the bowling alleys. For only a dollar the members are transported, supplied with bowling shoes, and can bowl two strings. Teams were set up and trophies given at the end of the year for the highest scorer.

BRIDGE CLUB—The Bridge Club is a group of fifty assorted students who gather on Thursday to practice and refine their game. The Bridge Club has a single function, based on the game's primary requirement: it takes four to play. The Club provides seconds, thirds and fourths to students who already know the game, but who lack people to play it with during school hours.

SKI CLUB—On many a cold winter morning, eager skiers awaited the chartered buses at depot square. Once the mass of ski poles, skis, and students were in the bus, the trip began. Anxiously, the skiers waited for the first glimpse of snow-covered mountains. Only a skier can describe the exuberant, captivating feeling of schussing swiftly down the snowy slopes or tolerating the slow-moving lifts.

CHESS CLUB—Competition is the word for Chess Club. Games having begun, friends become enemies, and conflict is seen at its best. Each contender formulates a plan, capitalizes on the other's mistakes, and through the intense concentration of the mind tries to outmaneuver his opponent; the one with the greatest insight coming out the victor. This competition, however, is not restricted to just contention within the school. Throughout the year the chess team (the best five players selected from the club) has many meets with the teams of surrounding towns.

RADIO CLUB—Beyond merely fostering enjoyment in the hobby of amateur radio, the Lexington High School Radio Club seeks to provide a real service to both its members and the public. Newcomers to the club are given training in the fundamentals of electronic theory, International Morse Code, and radio operating techniques. Club members, many of whom hold Federal Communications Commission radio licenses, have developed special skills in operating communications equipment under emergency conditions. The Club maintains a complete short-wave radio station and, for several years, has made it a practice of sending Christmas greetings from Lexington High School students free of change to many parts of the world.

FRENCH CLUB—Parlez-vous Francais? If you don't, you obviously weren't a member of French Club, for in every meeting nothing but French is spoken. Lectures, slides, and films were presented on subjects ranging from the French educational system to Dior's fashions. French records and games supplemented the activities of the club. A secondary task, but nonetheless important, was the fund raising for a scholarship. Through club membership dues, the scholarship was given to a student particularly outstanding in French.

JUNIOR RED CROSS—Help was the by-word of the Junior Red Cross. In cooperation with the Red Cross, the students sent gift boxes to children throughout the world, devoted their afternoons at the Bedford Veterans Hospital, where they helped the staff and cheered the patients. They assisted at clinics and blood banks, and visited old folks homes to round out the year.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS—This year a new club, Public Affairs, was formed as a forum for the exchange of political ideas and viewpoints on current events. Speakers were invited and films shown to broaden the members' knowledge of current events. The club was unique because instead of the conventional officers it had a chairman and an executive committee to plan the doings of the club. Members with similar beliefs were allowed to band together and form "factions" to solidify their arguments on various issues. Although this year was mainly an "experimental" one for Public Affairs, members are certain that next year the club will be one of the most active in the school.

SPANISH CLUB—This year the Spanish Club of L.H.S. was under the guidance of Mr. Barrera. This organization helps to promote students' understanding of Spanish-speaking countries and improves fluency in spanish conversation. In order to achieve these goals, members of the club often gave oral reports on Spanish countries and other related subjects. Films and Spanish music were also presented at some of the meetings.

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE—The year 1963-64 was made memorable by the visits of the exchange students. The A.F.S.'ers were impressed by the high academic standards of L.H.S. Each student contributed and retained something different from his stay in America. Chan Heng Wing, from Singapore, had a lead part in the senior play, and he termed our snow "a lot of paper flying around." Yildirim Turkmenoğullari, from Turkey, amazed at the idea of "going home everyday," had previously attended boarding schools; and found American food very strange. Although the boys found America very different from their homelands, Riki Ritteberg was surprised at how little America differed from Austria; except that "our t.v. commercials are longer" and our maple syrup unique. LHS'ers won't forget these students who increased international friendship and understanding—the aim of A.F.S. Our own A.F.S.'ers led a busy year. Ricky Fritz enjoyed his stay in Finland. Connie Woodberry, Karen Dutcher, Mary Fletcher, and Annick Faflick were this year's finalists to go abroad. Activities such as parties, the February dance, April "Day at School" where L.H.S. was host to A.F.S.'ers from other schools, our exchange students' speaking at assemblies, have highlighted another successful year with A.F.S.

SPORTS AT LHS

VARSITY FOOTBALL

The lack of size and speed determined the season's outcome, as the Lexington eleven posted a record of three wins, five losses, and one tie. A veteran defensive team, led by co-captain and most valuable player Bill Spinelli, kept the Minutemen in every contest, as the Lexington team lost heartbreakers in the closing seconds of the Belmont, Newton South, and Concord games. An enthusiastic win over Winchester, the second in thirty-two years, proved the team a great deal stronger than indicated by this year's record. With several returning backfieldmen and some good size in the line, Coach Janusas is looking forward to a better season next fall.

CROSS COUNTRY

"Sprint those hills, push it out, what are you slowing down for?" Coach Alfred Rocci never has a dull moment as head of the 1963 cross country team, which not only finished the season with a fine record of four wins and five losses but also placed 5th in the Middlesex League as well as 12th in the Class A State Meet. Leading seniors were Jim Hourihan, Frank Morse, Bob Shull, Richard Johnson, and Dennis Gettlefinger. Juniors expected to account for a winning season next year are Chris Drake, John Biggs, Bob Lezer, and Dave Hamilton.

A vital part of every one of this year's sports events has been the enthusiastic participation of our cheerleaders. Although plagued by mononucleosis, appendicitis and torn ligaments, the cheerleaders managed to give active support to our teams. In the fall they braved the cool brisk air to create a spirited atmosphere so necessary for our football games. Their Thanksgiving day rally provided added incentive to the team and spectators.

CHEERLEADERS

Through the winter they greatly encouraged our basketball team as well as our hockey team. They also participated in the Dedham Cheerleading competition where their pep and precision won them second place. The co-captains Sandra Chisholm and Charlotte Broussard as well as the entire squad, deserve a round of thanks from the student body.

CHEERS FOR A TROPHY

"Success" describes this year's Varsity Soccer Team. Coach Keith's booters had a record of 8-3-1. The team was selected to play in the Eastern Massachusetts Soccer Tournament. Although beaten four to two by a strong Medford team, our team played consistently well throughout the season. Outstanding members of the team were co-captains Jack Wallwork, who provided the offensive spark, and Charlie Egan, whose defensive and offensive play was superb. There were many other fine players who assisted in making the team a winning one. Next year's team shows plenty of promise, since five of the eleven starting players will be returning.

FIELD HOCKEY

Outstanding skills, good sportsmanship, and the will to win combined by Miss Leavitt's field hockey team made this season a successful one. The varsity suffered only one loss in a close game against Lincoln-Sudbury. The last game was the most thrilling of the season. The Arlington team entered the game undefeated and unscored upon. In the first half Arlington scored early and held Lexington scoreless. In the second half, Lexington exploded with two goals to defeat Arlington.

Jane Paranya was the high scorer for the season with six goals. Karen Cavaretta and Linda Coyne each contributed two. In the wing positions, Sue Tuck, Carolyn Brucci, and Thora Easton were invaluable in carrying the ball down the field. The defense was strong with returning veterans Joan Turner, Janet Semonian, and Cindy Saunderson. Penny Colpitts and Holly Nichols also did a fine job along with Florence Sawyer who had a tremendous season as goalie. The Junior Varsity improved a great deal throughout the season and the experience and skill they gained will be welcome next year.

BASKETBALL

Coach Roland Massimino in his first year at LHS produced a hard working basketball squad. An aggressive "ball-you-man" defense, which introduced a new approach to basketball in Lexington, gave LHS spectators many exciting moments.

Paced by all-stars Charlie Egan, who averaged nineteen points a game and sophomore John Crisp, the team had a satisfying year. The spirited play of co-captain John Glennon, greatly-improved Vi Hayes, always-hustling Frank Yeomans, and rebound man Tom Parisian contributed to many an LHS victory. Dave Aronson, Dick Luongo, Alan Besecker, Brad Foster, Bob Goddard, and Lyndon Wilkes promise an even better record in 1965.

This year's girls' basketball team, although plagued by a lack of height, ended the season with a record of 4-3. Linda Coyne, with her interceptions and ability to harass the other teams, and Jan Semonian, with her outside shooting, helped make up for the lack of height. Jan was high scorer for the season.

Cindy Saunderson, the captain, played an excellent defensive game with well timed interceptions. Jane Paranya drove into the basket for some beautiful lay-ups and rebound shots. Sue Meadows and Sue Tuck kept the game moving with their well-placed passes. April Works and Connie Woodberry pulled down rebounds even though they sometimes needed help from Florence Sawyer and Karla Pfeil when the opposing forwards were too tall. It is hoped next year's team, with the help of some of the excellent sophomore players, will have an undefeated season.

HOCKEY

This year Coach Keith had his problems in Middlesex League hockey competition. Like the basketball team, the hockey squad was strongest on defense. Goalie Bob McCarthy, assisted by defensemen Tom Sodestrom, Walter Spellman, and Jim Bailey, held the number of goals scored against LHS to a total much lower than that of 1963. Joe Lowry, Paul Fontas, Chip Sullivan, Gerard Campisi, and Joe Gallagher formed Lexington's offense.

With the creation of the youth hockey program for the elementary and junior high schools, future LHS squads are predicted to improve.

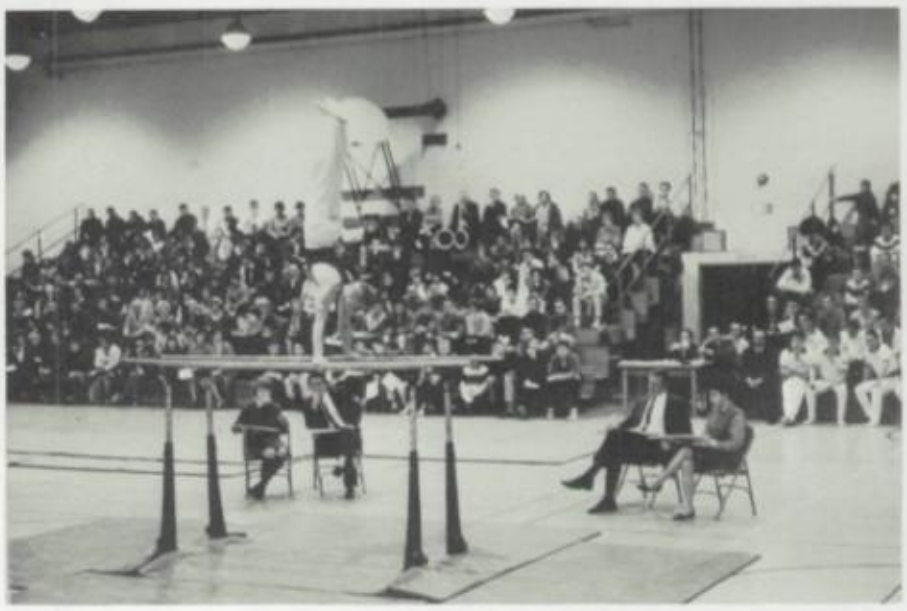
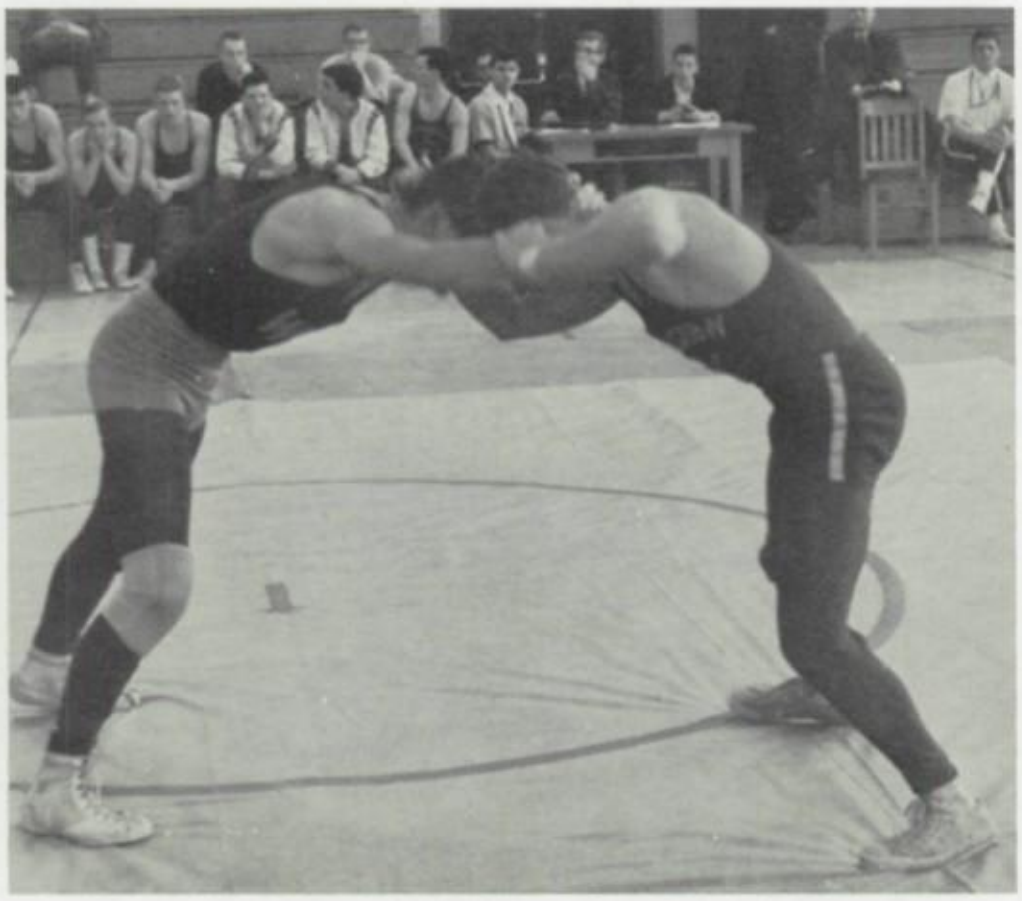
GYMNASTICS



Gymnastics at LHS enjoyed a very successful season led by co-captains John Godwin and Dave Woods. Jim Hall, Ed McDevitt, Bob Goff, and Don Batty were the senior contributors to the team's fine record. LHS showed up well in Middlesex League competition as they defeated Belmont, Melrose, and Wakefield, losing to Winchester by only ten points.

Next year Coach Todaro will have experience as well as ability on his side, as underclassmen Rick Hopwood, Joe Godwin, and Chuck Johnson will be returning.



WRESTLING

With Bob Basney's sit-out, Bruce Heller's body roll, Harold Dillman's stand up, and Dave Sawyer's sitting switch, Lexington's wrestlers made an admirable record for a relatively new sport, especially in post-season tournaments. Although losing top competitors Cleve Bridgeman, Tom Folk, Bob Basney, and Harold Dillman, next year Coach Janusas has confidence in juniors Bruce Heller, Don Nussdorfer, and Earl Batson.

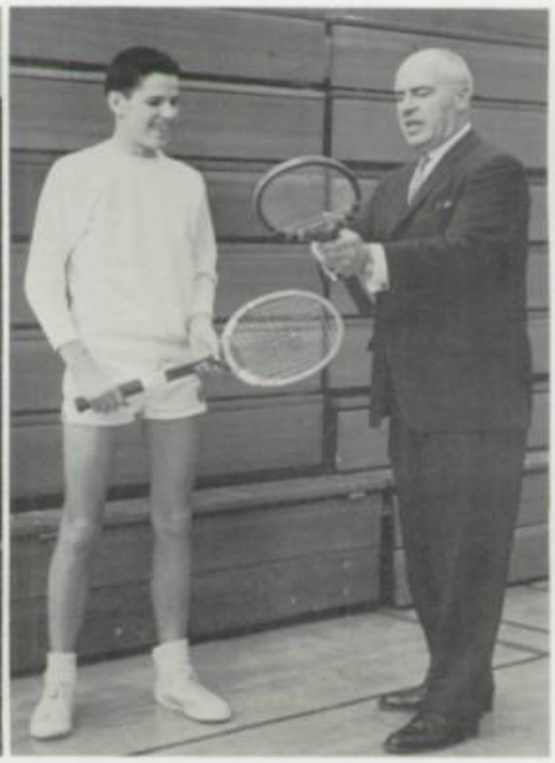
TRACK

The loss of last year's senior tracksters has been more than compensated for by the improvement seen in veterans Brian Jones and Ken Goddard in the hurdles, Jim Crisp in the javelin, and Cleve Bridgeman in the discus. Coach Ralph Lord also has his eye on junior standouts Chris Drake, Lee Smith, and Steve Wimberly. With these and other top competitors a successful track season is predicted.

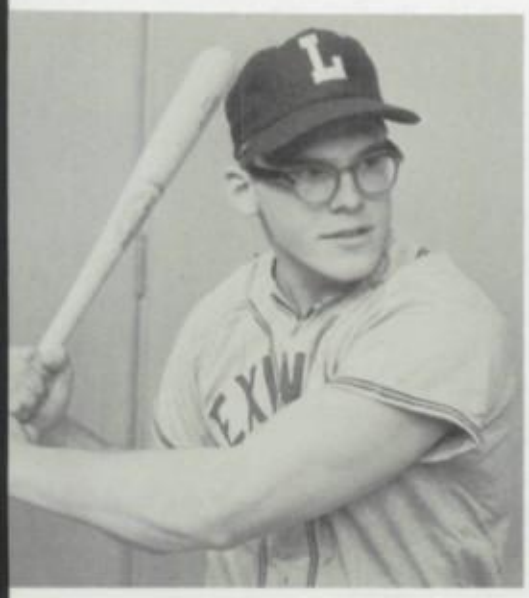


TENNIS

After finishing second in the League in 1963, this year's tennis squad composed of returnees, Steve Calvarese, Joe Lowry, Bob Basney, Stan Dirks, Jim Bailey, Peter Clark, Rick Zeoli, and Glen Davis are aiming at the Middlesex crown. Coach Frank Flynn is counting on upsetting Winchester, last year's champions, to clinch the title for L.H.S.

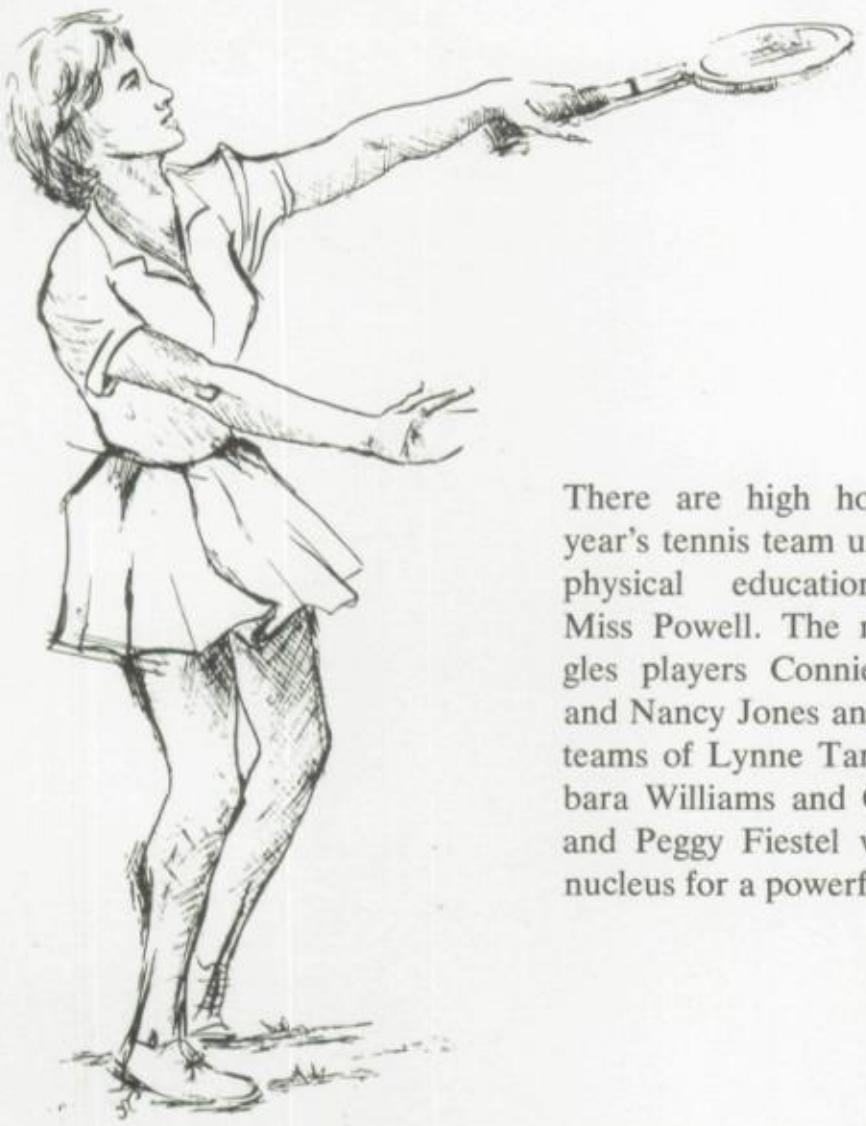
GOLF

Coach John Janusas is counting on his returning golfers Charley Connolly, Mike Garrity, George Jamgochian, Peter Anderson, Don Shaw, and Sam Baker to produce a winning season. Reading and Melrose appear to be LHS's prime opponents, but Lexington will be in strong contention for the league title, after finishing third for the last two years.



BASEBALL

With seven returning starters Coach Nathan Todaro will undoubtedly produce an experienced baseball team. The competition will be stiff, but the spirit and anticipation of a Middlesex League Championship are high. If the momentum of six straight wins closing the 1963 season can be preserved; LHS can look forward to a fine performance by its baseball team.



GIRLS TENNIS

There are high hopes for this year's tennis team under our new physical education instructor Miss Powell. The returning singles players Connie Woodberry and Nancy Jones and the doubles teams of Lynne Tarule and Barbara Williams and Cheryl Viano and Peggy Fiestel will form the nucleus for a powerful team.

GIRLS SOFTBALL

As soon as the first blade of green grass shoots up, you can expect to see Jane Paranya, Kathy Talma, and Janet Semonian out practicing on the softball diamond. All three, with Florence Sawyer and Cindy Saunderson, last year's pitcher and catcher, will form the core of this year's team. It is hoped that this year's team will better last year's record of 4-4.

CLASS OF SIXTY-SIX

Along with his new-found humility, another inconvenience has been inflicted upon this year's lonely sophomore. It is the double sessions. A.M. sophomores will not quickly forget the sudden piercing sound of their alarm clocks long before sunrise; the effort to keep their eyes open, or the chill as they threw back the covers. Nor will the afternoon sophomores forget doing homework as soon as they got up in the morning or watching the sun slowly going down during last period class. This topsy-turvy timing of our schedule segregates us from the rest of the school. It creates a loneliness which seems to affect sophomores exclusively.

P.M. OFFICERS

Brad Neuman, President; Sue Shragle, Vice-President; Kelly Frick, Secretary; Janet Keeping, Treasurer.

Despite the bustling flow of classmates, there is hidden the repeating echo of the loud, lonely corridor which resounds to every sophomore at some time. It is more pronounced at the beginning of the year, but this acute feeling gradually fades as autumn blows into winter and winter melts into spring.

Our loneliness has turned into loyalty as we realize that the new addition being built is "our" addition, being added to "our" school, a part of "our" future. The class leaders, our outstanding sophomore athletes, artists and scholars will weld us into a class with school spirit and pride in our achievements in the coming years.

Junior homeroom representatives shrink as Tom supervises a class meeting.

CLASS OF SIXTY-FIVE

The size of the class of 1965 didn't hamper the enthusiasm and cooperative spirit present in all the class activities. This year the class spirit has become more apparent not only because the students know each other more, but also because the class officers and homeroom representatives are functioning more efficiently.

Three homeroom representatives were nominated from each homeroom by the class officers in hopes that the job would be taken with a more serious attitude. One may question this change in the democratic tradition, but when the results are examined the change seems profitable. Strong leadership has promoted class interest and participation to make the class truly united. No junior can forget the car washes, bottle and paper drives, and the social event of the year, the Junior Prom.

But the class spirit has not been confined to class activities alone. Juniors, madly screaming and waving arms, can be seen everywhere: on ski trips, selling programs and cheering at football games, and decorating for promenaders dances.

With this year over, the class of 1965, looking forward to being the first graduating class in the new building, is prepared to meet its best and final year.

CLASS OF 1964

Being a senior is a nebulous occupation. Underneath all the hectic activity runs a current of anxious anticipation. On to the world if one graduates. On to college, if one is accepted. On to work. On—on to reality and a chance to contribute. And what has come before to shape the class of 1964? Bake sales, car washes, record hops, proms—the usual class activities. These specific money-making projects have little real value in themselves. Their importance is in their effect on a class which freshmen year was divided between two rival junior highs. Cooperation in activities made the class a unified body, which nevertheless has remained a mass of distinct individuals. Only through these individuals have honors come to the class as a whole. Two of its members received unprecedented privileges as sophomores: membership on the varsity basketball team and an operetta lead. As juniors, members of our class won the top two places in the Junior Division of the Greater Boston Mathematics Competition. On the strength of its junior players the baseball team, after a discouraging losing streak, finished its '63 season with six straight wins! Five members of the class were chosen to attend All State Chorus. The final year, twelve of the class were named as National Merit Semi-Finalists. We founded two new organizations in the school: the Debate Club and the new literary publication, Overview. During summers class members held jobs as waitresses, soda jerks, cashiers, and library pages; worked in summer stock; or travelled and participated in work projects in France, Germany, the U.S.S.R., and Greece. Two students had poetry published, and two won recognition with their painting and sculpture.

Increasing knowledge, a developing sense of cooperation, and personal strength gained from individual achievement—these have shaped the class of 1964. For this year's seniors, the foundations have been laid and the way prepared. On to college or work. On—on to reality and a chance to contribute.

This year's Senior Play, The Man Who Came To Dinner, one of the two major senior activities, was the most successful in recent years at L.H.S. Throughout the first three months of school, the cast and crew, co-directed by Mr. Nichols and Judy Schantz, worked diligently toward perfection in characterization. The result was two terrific performances, the evenings of December 13 and 14, that kept the audience in an almost continuous state of laughter. The very talented cast was headed by Mark Goodman, Judy Bellinger, Francesca Urbano, and Nat Harrison.

THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER

The lighted pathway into the school lent a festive air to the Senior Prom as did the lavish cranberry and pink ballroom.

There could not have been a lovelier court—Lawrene Cormier, Nancy Glover, Gail McDonald, and Jean McDonald —than reigned our "Southern-Bell" Becky Thompson, Senior Prom Queen of 1964.

LE BALCON ROUGE

One hundred and thirty-one couples danced to the music of a seventeen piece orchestra on December 7, 1963, a night that will long be remembered.

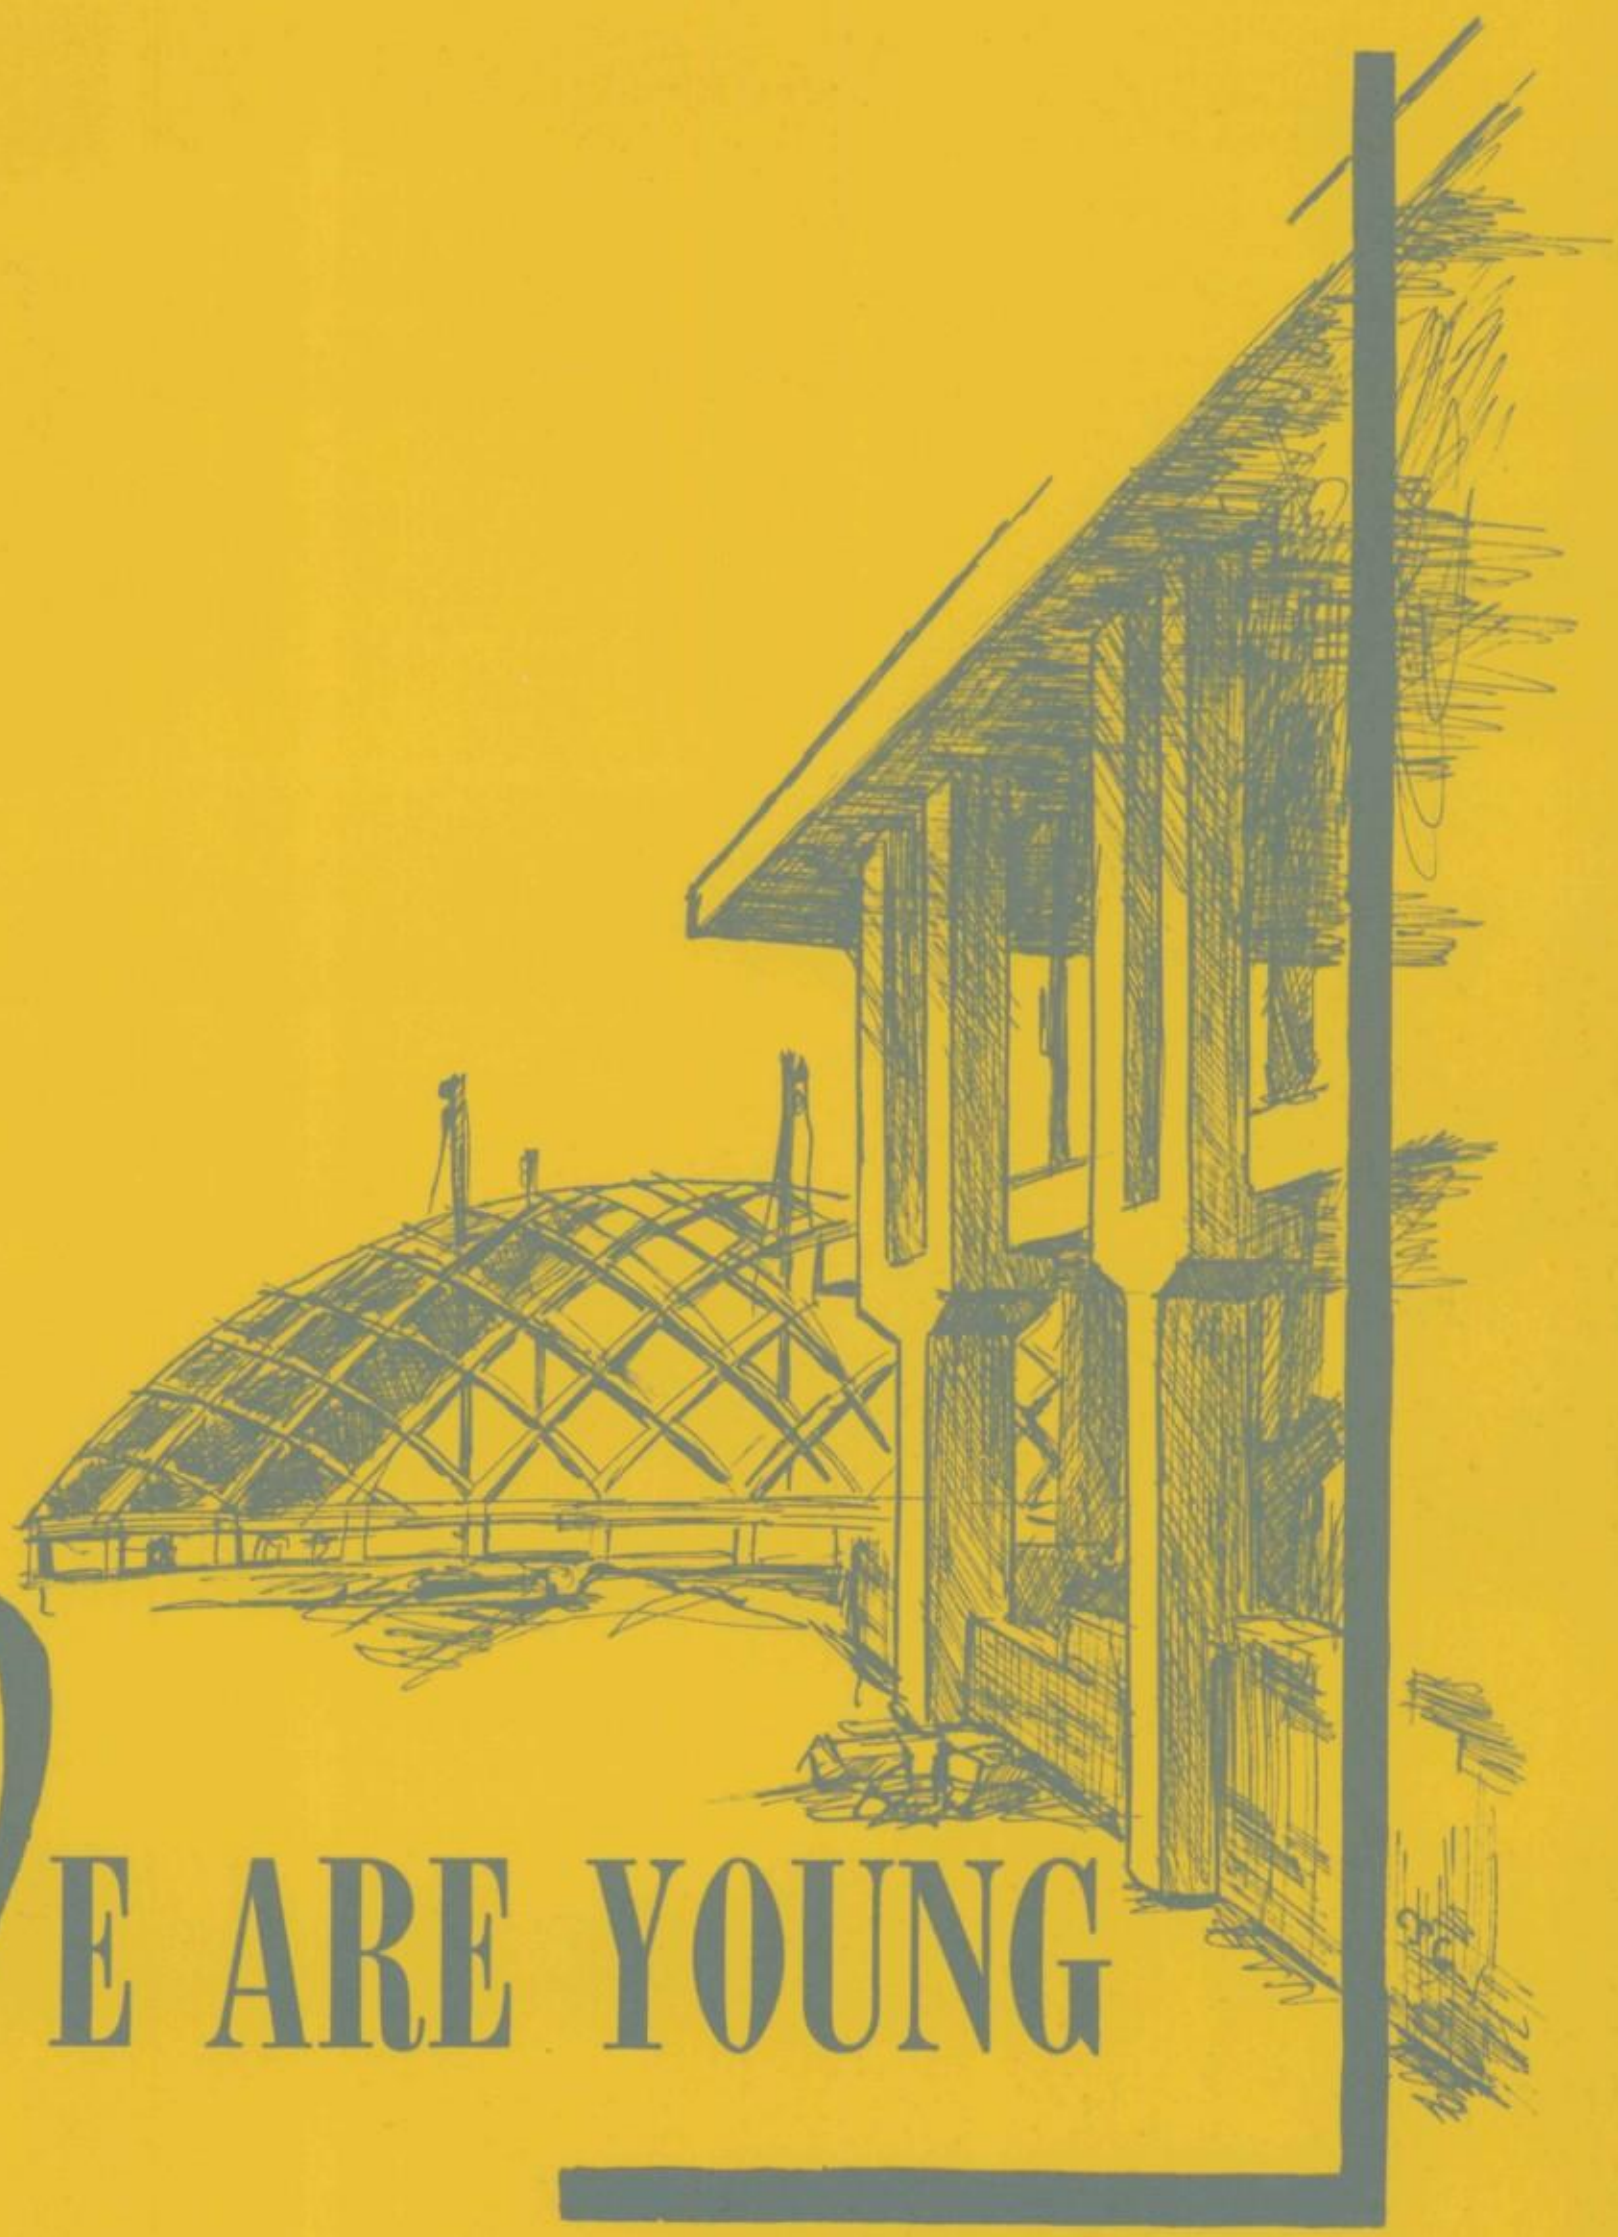
Double-date?

For the second year, seniors, under the direction of the student council and the town clerk, have participated in a student town government day. The students who ran the town on February 17 were: Constables: John Ferro and Steve Bortone; Cemetery Commissioner: Phil Goldthwait; Treasurer: Sandy Chisholm; Clerk: Rick Jones; Tax Collectors: Helaine Friedman and Frances Groden; Selectmen: Diane Baptiste, Nancy Carlson, Ron Kunz (chairman), Ed Lyman and Janet Semonian; School Committee: Marlene Bluestein, Mike Rafferty (chairman), Phyllis Rimmer, Bob Shull and Connie Woodberry; Planning Board: Steve Calvarese, John Godwin (chairman), Sue Graves, Beverly Lannquist and John Murphy. The student officials met on March 18 at the high school and wrote an essay about a selected topic concerning government. The winners took an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D. C., in May.

being a senior is a nebulous occupation

Thirteen senior boys were molded into thirteen homemakers in one short year by our beloved Miss Clark. The chefs filled the halls with the scent of pizza, peanut brittle, brownies and raspberry brickle bars every B block. They baked culinary masterpieces for the N.H.S. induction, the Christmas Tea, the Superintendent's reception, and primarily for themselves.

Seniors were not immune to Beatlemania. Four hairy men from England not only set the style in music, but introduced a unique coiffure. Honorary senior, "Ringo" Nichols beams proudly at right.



WE ARE YOUNG

We are young and we are waiting waiting for the time when we are ourselves

We are young and we are working working to learn and to become

We are young and we are laughing
laughing at the joy of a moment's meaning

We are young and we are seeking seeking that which is ours to do waiting for when we are the time

working to learn and to become laughing at the joy of a moment's meaning seeking that which is ours to do
